GRACE SEELEY HENOP TYTUS McLENNAN (1875-1928)

Grace Seeley Henop was born on September 9, 1875 in Ossining, NY to Louis Philip Henop (1833-1918) and Alice Seeley Henop. She and her sister, Sydney Stuart Henop (who married Sir Talbot Ewart), were educated in New York and traveled extensively abroad with the family.

On May 19, 1903, Grace married Robb de Peyster Tytus (1876-1913) in Grace Church, New York, in a ceremony performed by Rev. William R. Huntington. Tytus, who was born on February 2, 1876 in Asheville, NC to businessman Edward Jefferson Tytus (1845-1881) and Charlotte Mathilde Davies Tytus (1850-1936), had graduated from Yale College in 1897 and had received a master's degree from Yale in 1903. Tytus had conducted excavations with Howard Carter and Percy Newberry on the tomb of King Amenhotep III in Thebes, Egypt and had published A Preliminary Report on the Re-Excavation of the Palace of Amenhetep III in 1903. Later, he published various poems, stories, articles, and drawings, some in collaboration with Grace. He was also elected twice to the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

On their honeymoon, Robb and Grace visited the Berkshires and decided to buy property there. Over time, they assembled several farms to create Ashintully, an estate in Tyringham, Massachusetts. The name Ashintully derives from Gaelic and means “on the brow of the hill.”

The Tytuses traveled at length after their wedding, and their first daughter, Mildred Mordaunt Tytus (1904-1933) was born in Cairo, Egypt on April 7, 1904. Their second daughter, Victoria Stuart Tytus, was born five years later in Tyringham, on October 23, 1909. Three years later, the Tytuses completed at Ashintully a Georgian-style mansion, which became known as the “Marble Palace.”

Tytus’s health deteriorated, and he died of tuberculosis on August 13, 1913 in Saranac Lake, NY. As a memorial to Tytus, his mother donated money to the Metropolitan Museum of Art to fund the publication of a series of five volumes, the Robb de Peyster Memorial Series, regarding excavation work in Thebes.

On January 7, 1915, Grace Tytus married Canadian industrialist, newspaper owner, and politician John Stewart McLennan (1853-1939) in the Grace Church Chantry in New York. Their son, John Stewart McLennan, Jr. (1915-1996) was born on November 26, 1915 at Ashintully. They divided their time between Sydney (Nova Scotia) and Ashintully, and they also spent time in Washington, DC through McLennan’s position as Canadian senator, as well as continuing to travel abroad.

The McLennans separated in 1921, and Grace filed for divorce in 1926; the divorce was finalized in 1927. Grace continued traveling, entertaining international and prominent guests at Ashintully, and giving talks and writing about world politics.

On October 14, 1928, Grace slipped and fell while playing tennis at Ashintully. She was hospitalized in Pittsfield with a broken hip and returned to Ashintully to recuperate, but she died on October 29th.

Grace’s daughters from her first marriage, Mildred and Victoria, inherited Ashintully. Mildred died in a car accident in Springfield, Massachusetts in 1933, and Victoria, who had married Lawrence Coolidge and had a family of her own, decided to sell Ashintully. John Stewart McLennan, Jr., who had become a composer (he won the American Academy of Arts and Letters music award in 1985), purchased the property in 1937.

McLennan, Jr. lived in the farmhouse at the bottom of the hill while the great house, which had been built as a summer home and was difficult to heat in winter, remained empty. McLennan eventually put the great house on the market and found a buyer, but the house burned down on April 20, 1952 before the sale was completed.

McLennan created Ashintully Gardens on the estate, leaving the foundation, terrace, and four columns from the front of the great house as a testament to the original structure. He blended natural and created features into a beautiful garden that incorporated meadows, footpaths, statuary, and grassy terraces, among other elements.

From 1977 to 1991, McLennan gave to The Trustees of Reservations almost 600 acres of land in Otis and Tyringham that was part of the original Ashintully estate to form a new reservation, McLennan

Reservation. Then in 1996, he and his wife, Katharine, gave The Trustees the more than 120 acres that comprise Ashintully Gardens. McLennan died on October 10, 1996 at Ashintully.

DESCRIPTION OF THE PAPERS

The Grace Seeley Henop Tytus McLennan Papers contain materials regarding McLennan's life, her writing, and her family. The papers span the years 1884 to 1928.

The collection is organized into four sections: Grace Seeley Henop Tytus McLennan (1875-1928); Victoria Stuart Tytus Coolidge (b. 1909); John Stewart McLennan (1853-1939); and Robb de Peyster Tytus (1876-1913).

The first section, Grace Seeley Henop Tytus McLennan (1875-1928), is further organized into six subsections: Correspondence, Diaries, Notes, Poetry, Other Writings, and Other Materials.

The first subsection, Correspondence, contains a 1925 letter from Saïd K. Haiek regarding excavation work and travels in Egypt; a Christmas note from Robert Haven Schauffler; a note from McLennan's daughter, Mildred Mordaunt Tytus (1904-1933), probably written in the 1920s; a letter that is possibly from Gretchen Osgood Warren (1868-1961) in the 1920s; and an envelope from an unidentified sender in France in 1892. There is also a letter from McLennan to Robb de Peyster Tytus (1876-1913) in 1896 after a visit with him; two letters of recommendation for McLennan; a fragment of a letter from Miss F.M. Cheney; and a letter in German from an unidentified sender to Else."

The second subsection, Diaries, makes up the bulk of the collection and contains 15 diaries written by McLennan from 1886 to the 1920s. Most of the diaries document McLennan's summer travels in Europe; there are also travel diaries for her trips to Egypt, Syria, Jerusalem, Greece, and Turkey, as well as a trip from San Francisco to Hawaii and Japan. Items that were laid in to the diaries have been foldered and described separately.

The third subsection, Notes, contains notes and quotations that McLennan probably collected as source material for her writing. Some of the notes are on political topics, such as events in Turkey and the Washington Arms Conference that took place from 1921 to 1922.

The fourth subsection, Poetry, contains drafts of poems that McLennan wrote, most of which are photocopies of typescripts. There is also a photocopy of a published poem, "The Difference"; a handwritten version of a poem, "I Wonder," that she wrote with Robb de Peyster Tytus for their daughter Mildred; and several drafts of "Song at Dawn." One limerick, "There lives a young man," includes an ink drawing.

The fifth subsection, Other Writings, contains a musical composition; three articles on the Azores, Japan, and Mary Frazier respectively; three short stories; a complete play and a plot for a play; and a list that McLennan made of her published writing from 1903 to 1909. Lastly, there is an essay that McLennan wrote the day before she died regarding her stay in the hospital in Pittsfield, Massachusetts.

The sixth subsection, Other Materials, contains clippings regarding Ashintully; a pencil sketch of a mountain scene and a book of sketches that were probably made by McLennan; one photograph of McLennan on board a ship, probably in September 1903; photographs of buildings, people, and scenes in the Azores, probably in the early 1900s; and three school awards that were presented to McLennan from 1887 to 1890.

The second section, Victoria Stuart Tytus Coolidge (b. 1909), contains a clipping regarding her activities as a debutante in 1928.

The third section, John Stewart McLennan (1853-1939), contains a 1915 postcard to McLennan regarding a Canadian natural gas publication and a draft of a prayer written by McLennan in 1914.

The fourth section, Robb de Peyster Tytus (1876-1913), contains clippings regarding Tytus's purchase and construction of Ashintully, Tytus's political career, and his death. There are also notes and writings (including portions of a published article) regarding his excavation work in Egypt; congratulatory letters regarding his election to the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1908; and a travel diary from an 1888 trip to England.
